

The Kew Society Newsletter • Winter 2022-23

Welcome....

to our Winter Newsletter. We hope you had a peaceful Christmas and that 2023 has got off to a good start despite the rather gloomy headlines appearing each day. We hope you will be interested to read about the work that the Kew Society is embarking on to decide on our strategy over the coming years. If you have any ideas for articles in our future newsletters, do send us an email with your suggestions.

And welcome to our new trustees

Following the article about our new Treasurer in the previous edition, we thought you would like to know a little about our other recently-appointed trustees, both of whom have lived in Kew for some time.

Diana Ormond

Diana has lived in Kew for 30 years, and has worked during this time as a primary school teacher in various local authorities. She finally retired last July and became a trustee as she felt ready for a new challenge in addition to her interests of music and singing! She has been a Trustee of the Kew Community Trust for several years, and enjoys trying to contribute to the well-being of our community.

Janet Clark. Janet has lived in Kew since 2011 and says that she has never regretted the move! She joined The Kew Society fairly quickly, enjoying the activities, and served three years as Treasurer until Mike Adams took over in 2016. She continued to be a member, and recently decided she would like to make a more positive contribution, by serving on the Committee as a trustee. She is a befriender member of KNA, plays bridge, and is the Treasurer of the Barn Church. She is a keen hillwalker, leads walks for her walking club, and very much enjoys being a leader for Richmond's 'Walking for Health'.

Our five-year strategy

2023 will be an exciting time for the Kew Society and, we hope, a year that will lay foundations for very positive change and development.

Spurred on by the knowledge that four key trustees (our Hon. Secretary, Planning Lead, Environment lead and Deputy Chair/Communications Lead) all have to step down at the next AGM, and that our long-standing volunteer Webmaster and Membership Secretary have also both expressed a desire to retire, it seemed appropriate to invite all our trustees, recent trustees and co-opted committee members to participate in a half-day strategy meeting to enable us to 'stand back' and discuss where we think that The Kew Society is at the moment and how we would like to see it develop over the next few years.

Two of our patrons – Nick Baird and David Durie – and a (fairly new) member – Saima Habib – provided invaluable help in planning the content and structure of our discussions, and we are extremely grateful to RBGK for providing an excellent venue and a very generous discount on the (essential!) refreshments.

We had a very productive morning, one Saturday in November, with different groups sharing thoughts and ideas that have been captured to inform the next stage of our process, which will be to establish a small strategic planning team. This team will commission research and gather qualitative information to inform recommendations about how the charity should develop....

We have agreed that our work should focus on three main areas:

- The built environment of Kew – present and future – providing well-informed and influential responses to planning applications and consultations which are likely to have a significant impact upon the local community, and supporting positive initiatives that are likely to enhance the local area.

- The natural 'green' environment of Kew – our green spaces, the riverside, our gardening initiatives around the village and the station platforms and relevant 'townscape' projects such as trying to reduce graffiti, encouraging good signage and caring for our street trees.
- Connecting people who love Kew in a variety of enjoyable ways – going forward, we would hope to supplement our highly regarded talks and outings programme with some enjoyable social events and 'shared interest' groups.

If you would like to contribute to our thinking – especially if you would like to consider becoming part of the team that will be turning our ideas into reality – I would love to hear from you. Initial thoughts are to create teams of volunteers that can 'dip in and out' of interest areas without having to commit to the full responsibilities of being a trustee. Kew is full of interesting and knowledgeable people with busy lives...we are looking for ideas that would enable you to contribute to our work for the local community in ways that could fit with your own lives.

This approach should also mean that trustees (unless they want to be) should have a rather lighter workload and will be able to concentrate on establishing and maintaining key relationships to help us achieve our agreed objectives.

I would love to hear your thoughts! Please contact me at chair@kewsociety.org

Neighbourhood Watch in Kew

Sally Durant and PCSO Lorraine Childs (pictured right) spoke to Venetia Harper about our local Neighbourhood Watch schemes:

Venetia: What is the purpose of a Neighbourhood Watch scheme?

Lorraine: The main aims of Neighbourhood Watch are:

- Communication between police and residents,
- Reducing the opportunities for crime and anti-social behaviour to occur in your neighbourhood,
- Building community spirit, and
- Looking out for elderly/vulnerable residents.

Venetia: And may I ask why you are both keen to promote Neighbourhood Watch?

Sally: Having been the Neighbourhood Watch Co-ordinator for The Avenue since 2018, I agreed to become the Chair of the Kew Police Liaison Group at the beginning of last year. One of my aims is to increase the number of Neighbourhood Watch schemes in Kew, and I'm grateful to The Kew Society for promoting Neighbourhood Watch in this article.

Lorraine: I believe that the scheme does make a difference, and it is widely regarded that having a Neighbourhood Watch scheme in your street can:

- Reduce / prevent local crime and disorder,
- Reduce fear of crime and reassure members of the public,
- Address issues relating to antisocial behaviour,
- Create safer neighbourhoods, and
- Build community spirit and cohesion.

Venetia: What is your role within the scheme, Lorraine?

Lorraine: I have been a Police Community Support Officer (PCSO) since 2008, and I joined the Kew Safer Neighbourhood Team in 2012. My role is very varied, and one day is never the same as the next, which keeps me on my toes. My role comprises, for example: victim of crime support visits, public events, school talks, outreach talks, vulnerable persons visits, intelligence gathering, supporting colleagues with operations, security advice, arranging events, public meetings ... a non-exhaustive list which includes supporting local Neighbourhood Watch schemes. Neighbourhood Watch schemes are not police-run groups; they are run by local residents for local residents and work in partnership with local police and other agencies.

Venetia: Why should individual residents sign up to the scheme?

Sally: Being part of a scheme means that you should receive regular email updates from your street co-ordinator on crime within Kew with advice from the police on any precautions they particularly suggest. For example, if there have been 10 burglaries from garden sheds, it's helpful for residents to know that they should lock their sheds securely and not keep valuable things in them. Also, specific information helps to keep things in perspective. This creates safer neighbourhoods and builds stronger, better-connected communities.

Lorraine: Also, once Neighbourhood Watch signage is put up in the road, the Safer Neighbourhood Police Team can offer home security visits and other initiatives.

Venetia: How does one get a scheme going?

Sally: If your road doesn't have a scheme but you would like it to, you need to either volunteer to become the co-ordinator or persuade someone else to do so. The job can be shared, which is a good idea for long roads. Once a volunteer has been identified, Lorraine will arrange a meeting to explain what to do, and she will provide all the materials, e.g. letters asking neighbours if they want to join the new scheme.

Venetia: What does being a Neighbourhood Watch Co-ordinator for one's road involve?

Sally: The volunteer taking on the co-ordinator role completes a Police form to ensure no outstanding matters/criminal history. After a satisfactory police check, the co-ordinator is appointed and letters can be put through doors. Residents need to complete a form with their details and return this to the co-ordinator. The co-ordinator will need to create a group email list of everyone who has signed up and then keep the list up to date when people move in or out of the road.

The co-ordinator becomes the point of contact between their local community and the Safer Neighbourhood Police Team who will pass on real-time information, for instance the method used by burglars in a street, as well as monthly updates/information regarding incidents/events. Any relevant information needs to be cascaded by the co-ordinator to their scheme members, but he or she shouldn't give personal opinions or advice, and so this part of the role isn't time-consuming or difficult. The co-ordinator will be invited to attend the quarterly Police Liaison Meetings that I chair.

Venetia: Lorraine, have you anything you would like to add about the role of a co-ordinator?

Lorraine: Ideally, a co-ordinator will promote neighbourliness by encouraging members to keep an eye on each other's homes and possessions, giving special consideration to supporting those who are vulnerable or isolated. Also, a co-ordinator should encourage members to report suspicious incidents and/or criminal or anti-social behaviour to the police or local authority. A co-ordinator is not expected to contact emergency services on behalf of members, who are expected to contact emergency services in the normal way (unless physically unable).

It's great when co-ordinators give support their local police and other agencies to identify local issues and solve problems where there are community concerns. As a co-ordinator, you may wish to do more and arrange events or other local activities to bring your neighbours together and help tackle local issues of concern to them. How much more you do depends on the time and commitment you are prepared to give.

Venetia: Are there examples of incidents that show how having a Neighbourhood Watch scheme has actually been beneficial to Kew?

Lorraine: Earlier this year, a resident living in the Village fell foul to a parking meter scam, and her Neighbourhood Watch scheme disseminated the information to residents. I spoke with a local councillor and discussed the possibility of some type of sticker for parking machines to warn of scams. Working in partnership with Richmond Council, warning stickers were produced and can now be found across the borough.

Venetia: Finally, I am always interested in the background story, so can you tell me how the Neighbourhood Watch came about?

Lorraine: Apparently in 1964, 28-year-old Kitty Genovese was stabbed in New York outside the apartment building across the street from where she lived. Two weeks after the murder, it was rumoured that 38 witnesses saw or heard the attack, but none of them called the police or came to her aid. This prompted inquiries into what became known as the bystander effect or "Genovese syndrome", and the murder became a staple of American psychology textbooks for the next four decades. It also motivated a community response, and the very first Neighbourhood Watch scheme was set up in the US. In 1982, the first scheme in the UK, known as Home Watch, was set up in Cheshire, and within 25 years representatives had formed local, county and regional groups. In 2007, with the support of the police and the Home Office, the first national umbrella organisation for the Neighbourhood and Home Watch movement was established.

The Kew Society is very keen to see many more streets form a Neighbourhood Watch scheme and reap the benefits listed above.

Venetia Harper

Planning

The Homebase Manor Road saga continues, with no sign of the Mayor of London's granting planning permission for the development. The hearing when he decided to approve the development took place over two years ago. We wrote again recently to the Secretary of State – the Rt. Hon. Michael Gove – requesting again that the case be called in, citing a very similar development where the local council's decision to approve was called in by him. We asked for an explanation of why that decision was called in but Homebase Manor Road was not, and were told that it was not policy to explain decisions. As we have reported before, each Secretary of State has said that it is policy to allow such matters as Homebase to be decided at local level. Although at true local level Richmond Council refused permission, legally the Mayor of London steps into the shoes of our Council and so, technically, becomes the "local" level.

Turning to Kew Retail Park, the community engagement process has stalled to a degree mainly because we have been told there is nothing further to report. Pre-application discussions have been happening between the developers and the Council planning officers. We are working to arrange a further presentation by the community engagement architects – JTP – and have pointed out to the architects that without greater details of the buildings and access plans, which are of great significance and concern to residents, there will be increasing frustration in the community. Those matters have not formed part of the community engagement.

In the meantime, the London Forum – which is the umbrella organisation for London amenity societies such as the Kew Society – asked us to participate in an evening session on 31st January on 'Making a Success of Community Consultation'. We were asked to give a short presentation on our 'experience of early consultation and collaborative planning for the Kew Retail Park redevelopment' as an example of real recent experience of this process. We asked members for their views on the engagement process so far. The response was that this was seen as a "box-ticking exercise". Previously such engagement, if any, tended to take place after the plans were well advanced and shortly before the planning application was submitted – when it was really too late to have any influence. The current form of engagement as at Kew Retail Park aims to take place much earlier and let residents have a say at a stage where, in theory, they could have influence (but on what?).

London Forum, its members and indeed planners have aimed for meaningful early engagement by developers with local communities in forming their development plans. It is a useful time to take stock.

Our experience with Kew Retail Park, being recent, was chosen as an ongoing example. John Ricketts presented our experience from our initial meeting with the developers and their engagement architects, through the workshop weekend and later updating presentations by Charles Campion of JTP, the architects. Charles Campion spoke on the process in general, and gave pointers for success in it. We await further developments and more detail on the proposals.

Local planning applications have focused on house extensions. There is a new application in for the conversion of what was the North Road surgery (77 North Road) to a nursery, which we are considering. Previous such applications have been refused, mainly on grounds of effect on neighbours' amenity and grounds relating to the scale of the proposals and related extensions to the building.

Kew Community Trust

Kew Community Trust is a local charity which supports the community through running an active members' social club and by offering impressive and versatile premises for hire and use, based in the Kew Community Trust Centre within St. Luke's Church in The Avenue, Kew.

Additionally, we hold community events, such as 'Meet in Kew' on the first Thursday of each month – a joint KCT and Kew Society event – which provide opportunities for those who live or work in Kew to socialise with friends and neighbours.

There we run The Avenue Club – an inclusive, secular, and friendly social club. Although our members are predominantly those who wish to get the best out of their retirement, we are working enthusiastically to change the perception that the club caters solely for older people. Our aim is for the Avenue Club to be viewed as a 'Centre for the Community' so that people of all ages and stages and all walks of life will enjoy our facilities.

We offer 'something for everyone' with exercise and well-being classes, art, languages, lectures, and films. We host events such as choir concerts, art displays and more. We make sure our members benefit from meeting up with others for lunch, on Mondays and Wednesdays, with Tea, Coffee, and a Chat available throughout every day in our welcoming social space.

Kew Community Trust Centre is open every weekday and we welcome visitors to drop by to see the range of facilities we offer. Many are surprised by what they find in this hidden gem in the heart of Kew.

Please do contact us on 020 - 8946 8807 to chat to one of our friendly team.

The Kew Society is very grateful to the Trust for allowing us to hold our committee meetings there every month.

Recycling: how green is our waste?

A practical guide: items that 'recycle out of home'

In the Autumn newsletter, we gave details of recyclable items you could put in your various boxes for 'recycling at home', collected with your household waste. In this issue we look at everyday items that 'recycle out of home' – that is to say, those items that must be taken to a reuse and recycling centre.

We are fortunate to have a local council reuse and recycling centre at Townmead Rd (www.richmond.gov.uk – waste and recycling. Caution, the site is within ULEZ.) If it suits, you can also visit Hounslow's Space Way reuse and recycling centre in Feltham (www.hounslow.gov.uk/space\_way\_re-use\_and\_recycling\_centre). You need to pre-book both sites if you plan to make a visit. Save up and take as many items as you can to make your journey as economic as possible.

In addition to the items you can put in your home bins, everyday items you can take to these centres include:

- Batteries (both domestic and car)
- Books
- Electrical equipment
- Fridges & freezers
- Hardcore & soil (limited quantities)
- Paint
- Shoes & textiles
- Toner & ink cartridges
- Wood & timber

We have received numerous enquiries about 'what to do with light bulbs?'

If you still have the old-style energy-hungry incandescent light bulbs, these must be put in general waste. Fluorescent light tubes (they contain small amounts of mercury) and energy efficient bulbs can be taken to Townmead and Space Way for safe recycling.

Many items not accepted include car tyres, household chemicals not in original packaging, fuels and oils not in approved containers, asbestos in any form, medicines, syringes and medical equipment – and dead animals! A full list can be seen on the two websites.

Closer to home, Boots at the retail park offer a hard-to-recycle service for beauty, healthcare and wellness products made of composite materials such as compacts, lipstick, toothpaste tubes and lotion pumps. You can even earn up to 500 points for recycling Boots products – look for this facility in its store.

Marks & Spencer – also at the retail park – will accept packaged used clean clothes, and Sainsburys on Manor Road has a range of recycling bins – see left.

The post-Christmas period poses the problem of what to do with those Christmas cards – you can always re-use the ones you particularly like by cutting out the picture and remounting on new card. Otherwise, there are few options other than to recycle them in your Blue Box – but not before you have removed any glitter, batteries or any other embellishments.

Finally, what to do with those crisp and snack packets mentioned in the last issue? Currently, there is no easy way to tell whether the packaging is foil and can be recycled or metallised plastic film which cannot. You can try the ‘scrunch test’ as a guide – if it stays scrunched, it’s foil, if it springs back, it’s probably metallised plastic. Get scrunching!

If you have any queries on recycling that you would like answered, please contact me via environment@kewsociety.org

Events

The Kew Society Events team is very pleased that Heather Wakefield has joined us. Heather has been informally helping out and we greatly value her additional advice and input with events.

We hope members enjoyed the varied events that rounded off 2022 – these included interesting observations by Lord Darroch at the October Kew Society AGM. His talk, entitled The Ukraine Crisis: Why Putin invaded, why he is failing, what happens next was stimulating and certainly engaged the audience.

Early in November, 50 Members had a most enjoyable morning learning from one of their splendid guides about Richmond’s Poppy Factory. The talk and tour (with a welcome cuppa and delicious cake) was focused on the 100-year celebration of the Poppy Factory where all the global wreaths are now made, including those designed specially for the Royal Family. The design for King Charles III was in racing colours of purple, red and gold – an amalgamation of those created for the late Queen, HM Elizabeth II, and King George VI. The Prince and Princess of Wales opted for a ‘Wales red’ ribbon.

At the Poppy Factory

In mid-November, a group of 20 members met in the low mist at the bottom of Old Palace Lane, Richmond, for our annual sloshy Thames Draw-Off Walk with Jason Debney – Thames Landscape Strategy (TLS) Co-ordinator – and Laura Nee – Rewilding Arcadia Partnership, Outreach and Education Officer, Thames Landscape Strategy. Walking along the river foreshore up to Ham, fantastic discoveries were made, the weather perked up and we all learnt much more about some of the work being done along the Thames to combat flooding and clean up the river, as well as TLS work on future projects (deleted improvements) and their links with Habitats & Heritage. All ticket money was, as always, donated to TLS to further aid their projects. We thought that the following feedback from Clarissa and Michael Fletcher about the Draw Off Walk was well worth sharing:

“We both enjoyed Jason Debney’s enthusiasm and knowledge on the Draw Off Walk and learning about invasive species, Tudor jetties and exploring the mud. However, the highlight for us was by chance noticing a slightly shiny stone, among the muddy discarded ‘sets’ (old cobble stones) along the stretch of the River Thames between Richmond and Petersham – we had in fact picked up a Stone Age hand tool. As you will see from the photographs (right), this is undoubtedly a prehistoric stone tool, made in the Paleolithic period by early humans 1.6 million to 100,000 years ago. Such stone tools were used by homo erectus but rarely by homo sapiens. Stone hand axes of worked flint were shaped into a characteristic almond shape, pointed at one end with a rounded base. This tool was made by knapping flint into a bi-face, two-sided, shape with two sharp edges, 4.5” long and 2.75” wide. The hand axe sits so comfortably in the hand. They were not of course ‘axes’ but a tool used for a variety of purposes, such as scraping hides, butchering meat, digging and cutting.”

Our final event of the year was hosted by the Queen’s Church of England school for an open-to-all Kew Street Tree presentation by Craig Ruddick, Arboricultural Manager, Parks & Open Spaces for Richmond/Wandsworth.

Craig answered several queries from local residents within his presentation and was available for Q&As afterwards. If attendees feel they would like a follow-up talk mid-2023, please contact us. Craig is always happy to answer specific queries, but this free event attracted many local residents, so may be worth repeating.

Events at the beginning of 2023 include guided tours of The National Theatre, three curator tours of The National Archives Treason: People, Power & Plot exhibition, a talk by Lucinda Ganderton on 24th February, The Time Traveller's Guide to Richmond and Kew in 1937 and

An Arcadian Thames walk with Celia Holman, beginning and ending at the Eel Pie Island Museum. We are sure some of you will remember her very entertaining talk on the history of Eel Pie Island.

We are also fixing up another date for one of Helen Bartolome's City of London walks starting at the Monument with a focus on Dick Whittington, Christopher Wren and Pudding Lane, an early evening guided Tree Walk around Kew Gardens, plus several other social events which are still in the planning stage, so watch out for details!

If you have any interesting ideas for future tours/talks to attract all ages, The Kew Society Events Team would be delighted to consider them. Spaces on some events are limited due to logistics – group size, dates, availability, guides etc. – and tickets can sell out extremely quickly. However, we will try to offer repeat visits where we can, especially if there is sufficient appetite.

Social Prescribing in Kew

Ruils supports disabled children, adults and the elderly to live independent lives by providing information, advice, advocacy, practical support, activities and befriending. In partnership with the Richmond GP Alliance, it is delivering Social Prescribing across Richmond. The service supports people to take control of their health and wellbeing by connecting them with activities and support in their local community. Claire Bethel talked to Social Prescribing and Community Development Manager – Callum Harvey – at Ruils to find out more about how the scheme operates.

Can you explain how social prescribing works?

We know taking care of your health involves more than just medicine. Social Prescribing empowers people to take control of their health and wellbeing. Our referrals come from healthcare professionals within the GP surgeries, alongside other approved healthcare professionals. We meet with people to understand more about their social needs and what they want to change. Following this, we can explore opportunities in the local community that can help them feel better. We work to personalise each action plan to individuals' needs. We aim to improve social, emotional and physical wellbeing.

What is your role?

The role of a Link Worker is to connect individuals to emotional and practical support, services and activities available in their community. This is dependent on the reasons why someone has been referred. We focus on what is important and what matters to the person. We provide follow up appointments for a short period of time to ensure the actions agreed at the start are completed. My role is to oversee the management of the service. I am new in post and am keen to explore the current activities and services across Richmond and then explore ways of creating new opportunities to support people's wellbeing.

Who might benefit from Social Prescribing?

We can work with anyone over the age of 18 and registered with a GP surgery in Richmond. The main reasons for referral are social isolation, mental health and weight management. Our Link Worker in Kew, Sheen & Barnes worked with a client who was living in a fourth floor flat, without a lift and could no longer manage the stairs. At their meeting she was able to explore the option of sheltered accommodation. The client was then able to complete the application forms and moved within two months to property with lift access so they were able to go out and socialise. She has also worked with a client who was housebound owing to not having a wheelchair. Following her exploring the threshold for the wheelchair service and working alongside the GP the client was able to receive a lightweight funded wheelchair so she is able to go out with carers. There is information on our website www.ruils.co.uk and also social media (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram). If someone feels they might benefit from Social Prescribing, they can speak to their GP.

Sarah Siegert – Link Worker, Sylwia Ferguson – Clinical Director, and Callum Harvey at Pop-Up Vaccination Centre

Do the Link Workers meet up with people face-to-face or online?

We provide a range of appointments and use a variety of methods to meet the preferences of our clients. We can meet people at the surgery, at home or within community spaces. We also provide appointments over the telephone, video call or other methods to ensure we remain accessible.

What sort of thing would be prescribed to someone living in Kew? Can you give some further examples?

We work with clients to connect them to a wide range of community services. This can include advice on benefits, finances and housing. It can be focused on seeking employment, training or volunteering. We connect people with social activities through community centres, libraries, churches and other community-based venues.

Within Kew, we would signpost to the activities and support available through Live Well, Kew Gardens, the Avenue Club and Kew Neighbourhood Association. The team works closely with other organisations to meet their clients' needs. There is a great resource of knowledge and skills within the voluntary sector that we utilise and are thankful for their support. Social prescribing was introduced here in Richmond just before the pandemic.

Can you tell us what impact the Covid-19 pandemic had in terms of demand for social prescribing?

We received a high number of referrals during the start of the service due to the pandemic, responding to those shielding by connecting them with services to collect medication, shopping and remain connected through befriending. Through this period, we have seen an increased need for those affected by the pandemic in increasing their confidence to return to services previously supporting them, or seeking new activities. We have worked on over 7,000 cases to date and made over 15,000 connections to the community.
